Editorial Review

Review

"Congratulations on your outstanding contribution to children and their families. The sort of growth your work inspires speaks for emotional, ethical and character development. My personal good wishes!" --Diana Huss Green, editor-in-chief, Parents' Choice Foundation

"Peter's reading of A.A. Milne's verse and poetry is about you and me and that cognac-colored moment when a scent of memory sends us flying back through time to a place in youth where, for a perfect instant, nothing is wrong." --Al Martinez, Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist, Los Angeles Times

About the Author

A.A. MILNE (1882-1956) was the son of a Scottish schoolmaster. Milne won a scholarship to Westminster School and later read mathematics at Cambridge. His real interest was in light-hearted writing; he edited the undergraduate magazine Granta and at twenty-four he became assistant editor of Punch. After serving as a signals officer in World War I he won additional acclaim as a playwright. His great success, however, came as a writer of children's literature after publishing a series of verses about his young son Christopher Robin (When We Were Very Young and Now We Are Six). Following the acclaim received for the Winnie-the-Pooh books, Milne published several novels as well as an autobiography, It's Too Late Now (1939). His last triumph was a stage adaptation of Kenneth Grahame's The Wind in the Willows as Toad of Toad Hall.
