The Yard By Aliyyah Eniath

A literary romance novel - The Namesake meets Wuthering Heights. The Yard is a story of love and redemption, set in Trinidad, that exposes the fault lines in Indo-Muslim culture. Behrooz, an abandoned boy, is brought to a familial complex, The Yard, to live with a devout and extended family, where he struggles to belong. He forms a childish alliance with Maya, a wilful and rebellious girl, and his guardian's daughter. After they share a night of adolescent tenderness, Maya, fearing retribution, flees to London. Behrooz painstakingly rebuilds his life and marries another. When tragedy strikes, Maya returns to her childhood home. There, she and Behrooz must face up to old demons. Can their love endure? Even after Maya is dealt the most "righteous" blow of all?

Editorial Review

Review

Aliyyah Eniath's debut novel, The Yard, has the makings of a Bollywood movie

- LiveMint (ASIA)

The Yard tells of the growth of a childhood bond and later a struggle with romantic attraction. What follows is a haunting story of love, family obligations and redemption

- Trinidad and Tobago Guardian

Eniath's debut venture is commendable for her balanced portrayal of religious extremism. Her perspective on religious ideologies borders on her understanding that compassion creates a better world.

- Deccan Herald

With this novel, she explores the ideas of breaking free from imposed boundaries (familial or otherwise), understanding and feeling supported in who you are, overcoming self-doubt, and finally being true to yourself.

- She the People TV

A haunting tale of family, commitment, love...and being true to yourself.

- Roslyn Carrington, author of A Thirst for Rain

The author's voice speaks in warm and sometimes cold filmic pictures of the universal language of love, honour, commitment, belief and family. When a remote outsider, a young boy, is drawn into a devout extended family, there's disruption in their cultural fabric and hierarchy that challenges the decisions of a determined young girl's head and heart.

- Peter Jarette - Author of Brighton Babylon

I highly recommend this book if you're looking for a serene yet vivid love story (and the drama that surrounds it).

- Define Yellow Blog

From the Author

"Her brightest memories were his darkest recollections."

? Aliyyah Eniath, The Yard

"She silenced her pain this time and listened to his."

? Aliyyah Eniath, The Yard

From the Inside Flap

"The Yard is a story of the power of love - of parents for their children, of passion that can scare, and of letting go of someone you love for the sake of their happiness..."
